

BAG MANY SQUIRRELS IN HOCKING COUNTY

Anybody taking a squint out of the back window of the Tum pharmacy might wonder what had become of the game warden, until he learned that what he saw there did not represent one day's bag of squirrels.

For on a clothesline back of the pharmacy are pinned the trophies of six days' hunting in Hocking county by five Bucyrus men—62 bushy squirrel tails, 61 gray and one fox.

The hunters were Otto Hertzler, Charles Bonebrake, Kirby Woltz, A. A. Faslick and Omar Tum. They took a full camping outfit along and camped from Tuesday of last week until Wednesday of this week, hunting daily. Some of the five easily reached the day's limit of five squirrels on more than one day, but it was not especially easy hunting, they says.

Tum is said to have eaten so many squirrel that when anybody says "squirrel" to him, his face takes on the expression of an individual trying to learn to eat hamburger.
